

Working 2 Walk 2008
April 13-15, 2008
Washington, DC

Exhibitor Prospectus for Science and Advocacy Symposium
Sunday, April 13, 2008

The Working to Walk (W2W) Science and Advocacy Symposium is a full day event focused on advancing a cure for spinal cord injury (SCI) and other neuromuscular conditions. This symposium is a valuable venue for the latest information on SCI treatments and research as well as education on effective cure advocacy. The 2007 W2W event in Washington, DC hosted nearly 200 highly motivated mobile registrants, many of them spinal cord injured, along with their families, friends and other supporters.

Science Symposium - Regenerative and Rehabilitation Strategies

The Science Symposium will focus on collaborating to maximize recovery and benefits of physical activity following spinal cord injury. Presentations will cover many of the latest updates in paralysis regenerative and rehabilitation medicine in addition to essential strategies to improve the overall physical health of individuals living with paralysis.

Audience -

- People with physical disabilities (primarily SCI)
- Families
